The Seminar

The plantation industry is constantly facing many challenges to increase productivity per unit area and per worker, cost optimisation and in pursuing effective solutions in estate and mill operations; conservation and protection of the environment to remain sustainable and competitive in the long term. In addition to these demanding issues, the industry today is faced with a new threat – the global Covid-19 pandemic. A large amount of global economic activity has suddenly collapsed in the discretionary sector and demand for palm oil and other commodities will decline significantly in the short term due to the lockdown in most countries of food outlets. This demand will not rebound fully post-lockdown due to the likely severe recession. In fact the IMF projects the global economy to contract by -3 percent in 2020, much worse than during the 2008-09 financial crisis. Another major set back is the collapse of crude oil prices to historic lows, which will directly impact biofuel demand.

Therefore, in order to address some of these issues, The Incorporated Society of Planters (ISP) is organising its 15th ISP National Seminar 2021 (NATSEM 2021). The theme, "Addressing Challenges in Plantation Management" will set the direction for this thought-provoking discussion, to be held from 12 - 14 July 2021 in Pullman Miri Waterfront, Miri, Sarawak.

This theme will highlight and address on diverse issues related to plantation management that must not be considered independent of each other but requires an integrated approach to optimise improvement. These issues include crop ecology and cropping systems, pest and disease management, land and soil management, mechanisation, sustainable agriculture, manpower, climate change, food safety and waste management. In addition, the entire plantation sector has to develop and adopt robust SOPs in light of the Covid-19 Pandemic.

The seminar will be navigated through 4 sessions of different topics; Resource management (Session 1), Crop management (Session 2), Quality control and waste management (Session 3) and Human resource management (Session 4). We have lined-up 10 speakers who are experts in their respective field to share their thoughts on the issues during the two days seminar.

This seminar will benefit all those who seek to continuously improve and strengthen the plantation sector. When challenges within these criteria are answered, there will be improvement in terms of productivity for any tree crops. Throughout the two-day seminar with more than 800 participants expected, a trade exhibition with 45 booths will be held for participants to explore equipments and products related to the plantation industry. We hope, with your support, the seminar and exhibition will build a network among industry players and strategically create an opportunity or platform for exchange of ideas and thoughts.

We've learned that addressing challenges in plantation management will be the answer to improve yield and productivity, produce safe and high-quality products and generate more income in the plantation sector in view of the limited land for crop cultivation and prevailing sluggish economic environment due to Covid-19 pandemic. We are confident that this seminar can identify the trends, issues and technological solutions that must be developed immediately to manage the future working environment in estates and mills and reroute the industry back to its glory days.

We bid you all a warm welcome
